

VISTAGE CEO Confidence Index

Surveying CEOs of Small to Mid-sized
Businesses Since 2003

Confidence among CEOs reached its highest level in two years, finally achieving a lift-off from its favorable holding pattern in the last three quarters. The Vistage CEO Confidence Index was 103.4 in the 3rd quarter 2014 survey, up from 101.0 in the 2nd quarter and 97.8 in last year's 3rd quarter, and the highest level since 105.1 was recorded in the 1st quarter of 2012. There is no greater indication of confidence in future prospects than a firm's willingness to increase their fixed investment spending and to expand their workforce. On both counts, firms reported the most expansive plans since 2006.

While it would be normal to assume that these increases were due to the expectation of a more rapid pace of economic growth, the data suggest the reduction of uncertainty may be the more important factor. Rather than being hamstrung by uncertainties about changes in federal regulations and policies, CEOs are now fully focused on the growth of their own firms. Importantly, while firms believe that economic growth will improve in the year ahead, most firms anticipate that the pace of growth will improve at a modest pace.
